Even for experienced developers, it can be scary to face product innovation alone, especially if it's not a core competency.

But, you shouldn't have to be an expert in everything.

If you are concerned about the future of your products, your business, even your job, DornerWorks can guide you towards smarter solutions, raving fans, and a stronger return on your investment.

Revitalize your technology. Enable new features.

Dexter Laundry achieved an innovative new method of controlling and monitoring their machines by developing a smart web-integrated solution with DornerWorks. This set their industrial washers far apart from those of other commercial laundry vendors, rising above the noise of a crowded market.

Environmental Quality Monitoring

For a client's environmental quality monitoring IoT device troubled with unstable Bluetooth connections, DornerWorks engineers were able to locate and diagnose the issues, enable faster data transmission speeds, and implement a WiFi connectivity test by mobile device.

The client can now update system assets wirelessly, without having to rebuild their entire application.

Connected Medical Devices

When a medical device manufacturer realized their prosthetic arm technology required as many as seven different software packages for a technician to interface with, they knew it needed updating. DornerWorks guided the client toward an app that allows technicians ease of movement and a faster understanding of patient issues.

The final product was much easier to use, outpaced the competition, and found eager adoption among pleased healthcare providers.
